The International Society for Neuroethology (ISN, www.neuroethology.org) is an academic organization composed of scientists from around the world whose research is uncovering the neural mechanisms underlying natural behaviors.

The ISN organizes the International Congress of Neuroethology, which meets every other year in different locations: Sapporo, Japan (2014); Maryland, USA (2012); Salamanca, Spain (2010). Our next meetings will be held in Montevideo, Uruguay (2016); and in Brisbane, Australia (2018).
